FIFTEEN CENTS

Approximately 150 Planotes attended the annual Candidates Night, co-sponsored by the Plano Provisional League of Women Voters and the Plano Jaycees, last night, but looked as though there were more candidates than citizens. Voting for three City Council and two School Board seats will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday at Bowman and Wilson Middle Schools. (Staff photo by Mike Newman).

'Issues' Aired By Candidates

No Sparks at Rally

BY PAM TROBOY
A guard on increasing taxes, the continuation of present policies and the attraction of new industry are the pledges of the 1976 campaign.

City Council and School Board contenders met the citizens of Plano to explain their qualifications and intentions Wednesday at the annual Candidates Night.

The program co-sponsored by the Plano Jaycees and the Provisional League of Women Voters drew about 150 people and 16 candidates for four contested races. Robert L. Woodbridge and Norman Whitsitt running for Places 2 and 6, respectively, on the council did not attend.

Most of the candidates took advantage of the opportunity to outline their experiences managing multi-million dollar budgets since practically all stated that increasing costs and taxes present the biggest challenge.

Others, however, simply pointed to their qualifications which were included in a Voters Guide prepared by the LWV and published in Tuesday's edition of the Daily Star-Courier and said they were running to serve the people of Plano.

Candidates running for school trustee all praised the existing school system and then added their ideas of how to keep it strong. Financial responsibility was also stressed heavily. The highlights which follow are in the order determined by a drawing of the candidates.

J.L. (Jim) Higginbotham, chief of the production engineering branch in the Defense Contracts Administration Office at Texas Instruments, asked voters to choose after reviewing the backgrounds and qualifications of each person, rather than basing their decision on specific statements made during the campaign. He said his diverse background will give him comprehensive understanding of the problems to be met during the next three years.

Harry Scott, vice president in charge of marketing for Vantage, stressed that voters need a businessman who can look at the bottom line of the budget, taxes and bonds to get the best value for the money. Noting that hard business decisions will be made during the coming term of office, he said someone must be there to take care of each tax dollar.

Don Garman, owner of Garman Sales Inc. and a partner in Garman Brothers, said the issue of the year is the budget. Strong control of expenditures without sacrificing quality education must be sought, he stressed. He also called for a closer board faculty relationship, the review of the 1971 Master Plan and the maximum use of facilities.

Ann Hunt, a registered professional engineer with Mobil, said she cares about the school system. She believes the system is a fine one but pledged to work hard to keep its reputation. She also said that board members must hold taxes in line in the face of the district's ever increasing size.

Sue Willard Olivier, a homemaker and extended faculty member at Richland College, said an educator and parent will be useful on the board. A decline in literacy is her prime concern and she suggested more partitioning to increase student concentration. Olivier added that a consulting firm should be hired to determine whether a closed or open classroom is more productive.

Nelda Whitehead, women's editor of the Plano Daily Star-Courier, said she wants quality education, a fair return on the tax dollar and an even balance in all extra-curricular activities to include and expand fine arts. She also promised to seek the opinions of the people and to be flexible.

Bernard Everett Jones, a senior at Plano Senior High School, said a student on the board will be beneficial because he can maintain close contact at the school level. He said he knows the problems and can solve them. Jones also said he would attend an area college and commute from Plano.

Richard (Rick) Melcer, owner of The Printery Inc., said his family moved to Plano because of its fine schools and added that he still believes in the quality of the system. He also said he would maintain the current mix of open and closed classrooms. Pointing out that bigger, better and nicer for less money can't happen, Melcer said that as long as expenses go up the revenue must also go up.

Attracting industry to Plano and keeping taxes "reasonable" were the recurring notes in council campaigns.

Tom Long, an insurance underwriter, led off for city candidates. He said he has attended city council meetings for two years so he knows what the problems are going to be, what it takes to do things and how the system works. He also pointed out that Plano must attract more industry or the city won't survive.

Ken Spronck, a trust banker, said he has already served as a councilman in Rhode Island and noted that Plano has the same kind of problems he met in that state. He said financial planning is the most critical area for Plano because citizens will pay for a mistake for at least 25 years in the case of bond sales.

Mel Bessellieu Sr., a realtor and office manager of Century 21, said each citizen must get involved to have an effective government and must accept the responsibility which creates it. During the question period, Bessellieu said Plano needs a focal point and suggested something on the order of Seattle's space needle.

J.R. (Bob) Collins, senior engineer with Texas Instruments, cited his experience on the Planning and Zoning Commission. He also said he is concerned that FM

Strikes Mar Labor Scene

Teamsters Walk Away From Trucks Today

By United Press International
A crippling series of strikes stopped the movement of items from commuters and cars to beer and bread today.

Truckers, television technicians, newswriters and city employees took to the picket lines in various parts of the nation, but often strike-plagued New York City was spared by a last-minute agreement that averted a transit workers strike.

Teamsters shut down their trucks early today in the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history. The economic repercussions could be awesome.

Others on the picket lines included NBC television engineers and newswriters, San Francisco city workers and Anheuser-Busch brewery workers.

It was the nation's worst rash of labor strife in more than a year. The disputes centered primarily around money.

Some 1,700 technicians and newswriters went on strike against the NBC television network at 12:01 a.m. today. Picket lines sprang up at network offices across the nation.

San Francisco City workers, defying a court order, went on strike and thousands of persons lost their transportation. Buses, trolley and cable cars halted. Emergency crews manned the water works, and pickets appeared at police headquarters, the city hall and other offices.

Disregarding a city vote to put a lid on some municipal pay, leaders of the city's so-called craft unions called a walkout Tuesday night

Negotiators worked to the wire early today but failed to hammer out an agreement to avert the strike by 400,000 Teamsters, who haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Negotiations stalled early today but the two sides were to meet at 10:30 a.m. EST. Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said the meeting would be held "to see if there is any change in the industry's position."

"We are in the ballpark to be able to conclude an agreement," he said.

Bill McIntyre, president of Trucking Employers Inc., which represents the industry, said talks broke down because "the offer of one side has not matched the demands of the other."

But he said today's scheduled meeting was a hopeful sign.

The walkout threatened to halt auto assembly lines and trigger shortages of foodstuffs and gasoline.

President Ford was said to be monitoring the situation closely to determine whether to invoke an 80-day cooling-off period under the Taft-Hartley Act.

A handful of Teamsters covered by the national agreement remained on their jobs under a series of interim agreements.

Book Emporium Hit by Thieves

A collection of used comics and paperback books was stolen Tuesday night from the Book Emporium on Jupiter Rd.

A police department spokesman said thieves walked away with office equipment, a radio, a camera, 850 used comics and more than 100 assorted novels which were valued at $626.

Officers are also investigating three thefts and one case of criminal mischief which occurred on Tuesday.

Police answered 52 calls for assistance, arrested one person for public intoxication and one for Plano, Collin County and Dallas County check warrants and investigated two accidents.

A 1966 Mack truck driven by John Benjamin Gailley of Lewisville and a 1976 Buick driven by Doris Denton Bunkley of 2120 Willowbrook were in collision on 15th St. about 20 feet west of G Avenue at 3:47 a.m.

At 5:18 p.m. a 1964 Chevrolet driven by Mary Margaret Medlock of 633 W. 16th St. and a 1972 Ford driven by James Clarence Gauntt of 2618 Rockbrook were in collision at the intersection of 15th St. and Alma Dr. A speed limit sign also sustained $30 in damages.

Band Group Schedules Garage Sale

A giant garage sale will be held Friday and Saturday in the Jupiter Shopping Center, across from Tom Thumb on East 14th St.

Sponsored by the Wildcat Band, the sale will include furniture, glassware, garden items, clothing and a bake sale.

Funds realized from the sale will be added to the Washington, D.C., trip planned by the band for June 1. While in the nation's capital, the band will compete in the Festival of Nations Band Contest and will present a concert on the grounds of the Capitol.

'Dignified Death' Okayed

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — With the sanction of New Jersey's Supreme Court the Joseph Quinlans, will seek medical permission today to let their daughter Karen "die with dignity."

In a ruling Wednesday the court ruled 7-0 that Miss Quinlan may be taken off the respirator that has kept her alive—in a coma—for nearly a year, with the condition that doctors and a hospital ethics committee find there is "no reasonable possibility" of her recovery.

Real or Fiction

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Jason Ronard said a role he played on the television series "The Blue Knight" inspired the $3 million bank robbery in Montreal Tuesday.

"It was exactly the same thing I did in the show," he said. The robbers threatened a Brink's truck driver with a 50mm anti-aircraft gun and forced him to open the door.

Police in Montreal agreed with Ronard. "It appears the idea of some smart writers in the United States set the pattern," said Lt. Larry Levis. "The crime shown on American television was almost identical to this one."

Except for one thing: In the show, the robbers found no money in the truck and Ronard's character was killed. In real life, the robbers took the money and escaped.

Deadline Time

Waits of from two to four hours are not uncommon for Planotes who've waited until the last minute to get their license plate tags. The deadline for putting the tags on plates is midnight tonight, and for the benefit of those who have put the ordeal off until today, the County Government Center—scene of these crowded conditions—will remain open until 8 p.m. tonight. 544 be widened, Parker Rd. Overpass is built and Loop 9 becomes a reality. Collins also pledged to revitalize the city's Industrial Steering Committee to attract industry for a stable tax base.

M. E. (Mike) Morgan, a builder, made the most startling statements of the evening. Rather than saying Plano needs more industry, he told the voters that the city can't get industry because it is "impossible" to work with Hunt Properties.

Displaying a zoning map showing industrial ownership by Hunt, "he railroad, and independents, Morgan said most of the land is owned by Hunt who, he said, will not develop because of uncertainty about Loop 9.

He said the city must rezone old property and open new industrial parks because "we can't deal with Hunt Properties." He also said individual taxpayers are subsidizing Hunt because of the low evaluations placed on the firm's industrial properties.

E. E. (Bo) Boggs, an employee of Texas Instruments, stressed his past involvement in community affairs. He said the environment must be cleaned up and promised to start a recycling program. Such a program with newsprint could save $5 a ton in garbage fees, according to Boggs. He also said he favors any industry which has a sense of civic responsibility, a proven record of environmental concern and which uses a balanced labor force.

Bill Glenn, an attorney, referred the audience to his platform carried in the Voters Guide and pointed out that a lawyer on the City Council can be of service to the people of Plano.

Larry Jackson, president of Inwood Business Machines, promised sensitivity and awareness to the electorate. He also said he would share an active search with the chamber of commerce for industry.

The candidates will learn the voters' decisions Saturday. Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. at Bowman and Wilson Middle Schools.

In the order they will appear on the ballot, city candidates are Jackson, Long, Boggs, Wooldridge and Spreen for Place 2; Collins, Glenn, Bessellieu and Morgan for Place 4 and Whitsitt for Place 6.

In the same order are trustee candidates: Whitehead, Garman, Jones, Melcer and Hunt in Place 6 and Scott, Higginbotham and Olivier in Place 7.

Feinstein Refurbishing Home

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Alan Feinstein, who plays policeman Sam Donner in the new "Jigsaw John" series, is a traffic cop in his own house, directing work men here and there.

Feinstein, a relocated New Yorker, has purchased his first home, a San Fernando Valley rustic abode that is painted barn-red and white. He is in the process of refurbishing his new quarters inside and out.

A parade of carpenters, plumbers, electricians, painters, gardeners and swimming pool specialists track in, through and around the premises putting things in order.

It's traumatic for Feinstein and his wife, Theia, a North Carolina beauty he married four years ago.

Feinstein fancies himself a foreman and oversees the whole shebang. He was especially concerned about getting the den just right, finished in raw lumber and decorated Indian western style.

It is filled with plants, bamboo furniture and animal skins. Very masculine.

The entire house gives the appearance of the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, thanks to Theia, who is in the plant servicing business, which she began in New York. She decorates people's homes with plants and then grooms, transplants and feeds and treats the plants for diseases.

Alan's personal contributions to the decor are excellent pencil sketches of actors he admires, among them George C. Scott, Marlon Brando, Anthony Quinn and Peter Falk.

He's never studied drawing but is more than a passably good artist.

After 10 months in California, Alan has inherited a pair of stray cats, one of which, to the horror of the childless couple, presented them with a batch of five kittens.

With the house and grounds still in turmoil, the Feinsteins poke around antique shops searching for furniture.

In a recent episode of the NBC TV series, Alan found himself on a tennis court faced off against the show's star, Jack Warden. Alan was humiliated when he was unable to return even one of Warden's serves.

Alan was so unsettled by the experience he immediately took up the game

"Jigsaw John" is filmed on locations around Los Angeles. The schedule is tight and the hours long. Alan is on the set by 7 a.m. and rarely home until after 9 at night.

It's a hardship because Theia, according to her husband, is the best cook this side of Paris. She has a collection of 150 cookbooks and regularly produces exotic lip-smacking delicacies.

Alan enjoys cooking, too. Together they whip up Chinese, Italian and French recipes on weekends.

But when he gets home from a day's filming, it's generally late and Alan is too exhausted to savor all the goodies.

The couple's favorite dining out rendezvous is a west coast branch of one of

New York's most popular restaurants.

The Feinsteins are collecting shelves of California wines. Alan looks forward to the day when he will have sufficient time off from the show to tour the Napa County vineyards in Northern California.

For the most part the Feinsteins' friends are other actors from New York who have been pouring into Hollywood looking for work.

The Feinsteins anticipate the time when renovation of their home is complete and they are able to entertain two or three couples at dinner several times a week, treating their friends to gourmet specialties.

Alan and Theia have become accustomed to being a two-car family. In Manhattan they relied on cabs and public transportation.

"Driving your own car," Alan says, "sure beats the subway."

They all pitched in at the car wash sponsored by the Band Boosters to raise money to send the Wildcat Band to Washington, D. C., in the spring to compete in the Festival of

She's A Real Booster

Barbara Believes In the Band

BY NELDA WHITEHEAD
 Barbara Griffith is a polio victim. She was struck by the dread disease at age 19, only six months after her marriage to John.

Permanently paralyzed on her left side from the hip down, and in a brace for several years until the discomfort became unbearable, she now uses crutches to move about. But in spite of her handicap, she has raised three children, keeps her home, drives a car and devotes a lot of time in support of the Wildcat Band and the Planoettes, as does her husband.

Barbara is president of the Boot Backers, the organization that supports the Planoettes—of which daughter Kathy, a senior at Plano High School, is a member—while John is president of the Boosters Club which supports the Wildcat Band, and in which their son Keith, a junior, plays trumpet. The other member of the family is two-year-old Kenneth.

"Since August when it was decided that the Band would be allowed to make the trip to Washington to compete in the Festival of Nations contest, John and I, with the help of a lot of people and a lot of organizations, have dreamed up every conceivable project to raise money for the trip," she explained.

Barbara said the plane fare for the 131 members of the 146-member band who will be making the trip on June 1, will total $15,670.84, and she said that the fund has now topped the $15,000 mark.

"It is an honor for the band to make this trip because they must send a taped audition which is judged, before an invitation is issued to the Festival of Nations contest," she said, adding that not all bands who request participation are invited.

"In addition to participating in the contest, the Wildcats will present a concert on the Capitol grounds during the four-day visit and this was arranged by Congressman Collins," she said.

"So many people in Plano have helped to make this trip possible and we will have a lot of thank-yous to send out, as we have been supported by percentages of Pizza Day at both Pizza Casa and Jim's Pizza, a week at MacDonalds, and the aluminum can drive at Capital Wire & Cable," she said.

The Wildcat Band members also have worked very hard on paper drives, car washes and other projects to raise the money, according to Barbara, who said that in addition to the plane fare fund, each member will personally pay $92, as will accompanying sponsors.

During Friday and Saturday, the band is sponsoring a giant garage sale in the Jupiter Shopping Center, across from Tom Thumb on East 14th St., which hopefully will push the fund over the top.

Barbara said that the garage sale includes furniture, accessories, garden plants, bake sale and clothing. She added that the group is still selling fertilizer, and that aluminum cans are still being accepted at Capital Wire & Cable.

The Wildcat Band, under the leadership of Emmett Clem, will spend four days in Washington, returning on June 4.

Watergate Film A Real Winner

NEW YORK (UPI) — How does one condense the Carl Bernstein-Bob Woodward book "All The President's Men," about their part in unraveling Watergate, into a 138-minute movie? With talent, patience and sheer technical brilliance, elements all clearly evident in this dazzling and hypnotically fascinating picture.

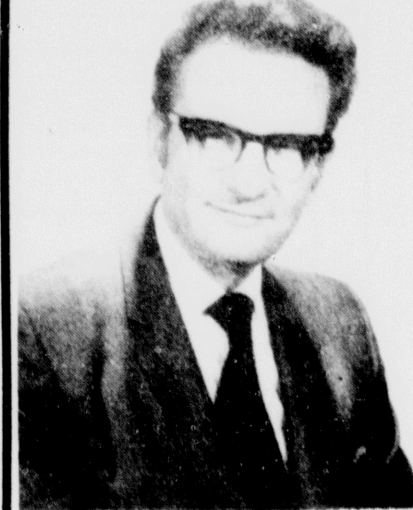

Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman combine precisely the right amounts of awe and grit as Washington Post reporters Woodward and Bernstein. And they are supported by an enormous and outstanding cast.

The real stars however are director Alan J. Pakula, scriptwriter William Goldman and Redford, in his uncredited role as executive producer and originator of the project. Together they have taken the inherently complex and static story (with its well-known outcome) and made it a gripping, powerful time bomb of a film.

There are omissions, of course. And the action stops short of the Senate hearings, the White House tapes and the revelation of Richard Nixon's role in the cover-up.

Among the cast principals, all flawless, are Jason Robards as the Post's executive editor Ben Bradlee, Martin Balsam and Jack Warden as senior editors, Hal Holbrook as the shadowy, never identified informant Deep Throat, and Jane Alexander as a bookkeeper at Nixon campaign headquarters.

Whip your own diet margarine

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I am hoping someone out there can give me the exact ingredients for whipping up my own diet margarine. I know the calories can be cut in half or more by this method. — BEVERLY.

DEAR BEVERLY — I spoke with the laboratory of a margarine company concerning your question, and they knew of no ingredients to add. But they suggested that low calorie margarine might be allowed to soften enough so it will whip well in your electric mixer. This will add air and increase the volume, so the margarine will go further and naturally have less calories in a serving. Perhaps some reader has found a better answer from personal experience. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those companies who put short zippers in baby sleepers. Those who designed them surely never tried to put one on a baby. You have to practically bend baby's arms and legs off to get them into the sleeper and this is most uncomfortable for baby. — TRACY.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. E.S. wrote of her unsuccessful attempt to make vanilla candles. I strongly suspect she has been trying to use vanilla extract for her scent and this will not mix with wax. I use a concentrated scent that is made just for candles and can be purchased at most hobby shops. Melt the wax to 175-180 degrees, add the scent and stir until thoroughly mixed and there should be no problem. — MONA.

Readers, the above came from a candle shop in California.

DEAR POLLY — If you have a portable sewing machine, but no cabinet, a metal typewriter table serves the purpose very well. It is just the right size and height. — ROZ.

DEAR ROZ — I certainly agree with you as I have used mine on such a table for many years. The machine is too heavy for me to lift but the table can be rolled to where it is to be used and the leaves dropped to the sides when not in use. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Re-use those large pieces of foil used for baking or broiling, by folding a sheet in half with the soiled side out. Then put in your dishwasher being sure it is anchored down with a heavy knife or spoon.

Drop the hose on your portable hair dryer into wet boots for fast drying.

To replace stale water without disturbing a flower arrangement use your baster. Draw off the stale water and then replace it with fresh.

To eliminate the crease left after lengthening permanent pressed trousers, use that tape that irons on over the hemline on the inside. Slacks will be smooth and the crease will not be noticeable. — DEBI.

You will receive a dollar if Polly uses your favorite home-making idea, Pet Peeve, Polly's Problem or solution to a problem. Write Polly in care of this newspaper.

DDT Takes Toll Of Cavern Bats

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — It wasn't too long ago that visitors to Carlsbad Caverns National Park could sit for hours and watch millions of bats swarming from the huge black hole in the New Mexico desert each evening from May to October. Now it takes only 35 or 45 minutes for an estimated 200,000 bats to flutter out of the cavern. National Park Service officials are alarmed at the rapid decline of the bat population. They say preliminary research shows DDT pesticide residues coupled with recent droughts are killing the flying mammals. "We need to find out from our studies if there is anything we can do to help build up the population," said Bob Crisman, management assistant at the park. The problem is being studied by University of New Mexico biology Professors Dr. Kenneth Geluso and Dr. Scott Altenbach and Dr. Don Wilson of the U.S. National Museum. They hope to have the results of their study by the first part of 1977.

Right Around Home

BEN MOFFETT

If you're considering a visit to Hot Springs National Park, but can't decide on the best time of year to go, don't look to me for help. I don't know either.

It's tempting to advise you to go in the festive summertime when a good portion of the more than a million annual visitors descend on this park in the middle of Hot Springs, Ark.

But it may be nicer in the autumn when the squirrels and chipmunks are most active and the flaming color of the leaves make it an especially fine time for hiking.

Winter is an ideal time, too. It seldom gets very cold or snows much and the vapors from the springs billow around nicely. And it's especially pleasant to slip into a thermal bath after a walk in the crisp air.

Then there's springtime, when the birds are thick in the flowering trees and shrubs and a profusion of violets and phlox catch the eye.

In short, this vacation spa at the hub of a network of highways in southwest central Arkansas is a super park in any season.

The hot springs have been heavily used for a long time. The area was set aside as a federal reservation in 1832 when medicinal bathing was extremely popular. And long before the first Europeans came to America, Indians were bathing in the springs.

The thermal water begins as rainwater and soaks deeply into the earth, emerging decades later from the torrid depths through a fault. Each day about a million gallons of 143 degree water emerge from the park's 47 springs.

Of the springs, 45 are sealed and the water is collected, cooled to tolerant levels and piped to central reservoirs for bathhouse and therapy use. There are 12 bathing establishments—seven in the park and five in the city—which use the thermal water and all are concessioners of the Federal Government, subject to regulation and inspection.

Two springs are kept open so visitors may see the waters emerging naturally, and there are several drinking fountains in the park along with some jug fountains for those who wish to take some water home.

Although the springs are the big attraction, there is much else to do in the park. Start at the visitor center at the south end of Bathhouse Row where you will be able to see a slide presentation on the history of the park and where you can get detailed information about park features, including:

—The Historic District, containing the bathhouses and distinctive, formal landscaping, the feature of another era. The Grand Promenade, a wide red-and-white-brick footpath, is the route of a nature trail where you can learn about natural and cultural features.

—The Cultural Exhibit, in the summer, which shows the Indian method of making stone projectile points and forming pottery. Early settlers made whetstones from the novaculite and this is also demonstrated.

—The park campground, nestled in Gulpha Gorge, two miles northeast of the center of the city. It lies on a stream terrace beside Gulpha Creek and there is also a picnic site and an amphitheater where evening programs are given in certain seasons.

—Hiking and horseback trails and scenic roads, which take you into the scenic areas of the park or into the mountains clothed in dense oak-hickory forests.

The mountains, a natural enclave adjacent to the busy city, are a distinct contrast to the rest of the park.

Besides the national park,

Texas Relays Bound

Keith Clayton, left, and Byron Kellar, right, will be participating in the prestigious Texas Relays Friday and Saturday at Austin's Memorial Track. The two Plano Senior High School thinclads qualified respectively in the high jump and shotput. The Texas Relays are held annually and only the state's top tracksters are allowed to participate. Clayton, left, has been receiving well wishes in his high jump category and one gift includes a modified metal shoe to help him spring a little higher. Clayton is the Wildcat high jump record holder at 6-5. Byron Kellar is Plano's record holder in the shotput with a 57-10 mark. Both thinclads are senior members of Coach Ron McNeil's track team. Wildcat tennis players blanked Irving High in dual match action Tuesday at Irving. Plano Senior High won all eight matches.

"We played well," Coach Ken Sumrow said. "This win came at a good time because our district meet is coming up. Our boys are beginning to play consistently and our girls have played consistently all year. It helps our confidence."

In boy's singles, Cliff Lazarine played well in winning a split set match 7-5, 6-7, 6-0 over Kielson. John Walsh also displayed good form in winning easily 6-2, 6-3 over Maahs.

In girl's singles, Kim Lewis rolled to an easy win 6-4, 6-0 over Studor, while Karen Murphy had little trouble in beating Housdon 6-1, 6-1.

In girl's doubles, Jill Wiley and Lisa Cure took a 6-3, 7-5 win over Dean-Tittle. Debbie Marvin and Ms. Brooks took a 6-3, 6-1 win over Hupp-Merritt.

In boy's doubles, Mike Sears and Brad Tubbs won a hard fought match. In the first set, the Plano duo was dropped 5-7, but they roared back to win the second set 6-1. In the rubber set, Plano's duo won 7-6 over the tough Irving team. Woertendyke and Huggins.

Also in boy's doubles, John Upton and Ladd Rowan won a split set match 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 over French-Studer.

Plano has two matches remaining before their District 13-AAAA meet April 9-10 at Denison.
